Various policies and programs have been implemented to address the issue of poverty. For example, the government has issued a number of policies, one of which is the Bantuan Pangan Non Tunai (BPNT) or Non-Cash Food Assistance Program. Presidential Regulation Number 63 of 2017 Concerning the Provision of Non-Cash Social Assistance was released to support the distribution of such aid. Pammana District issues include issues with irrelevant data as well as concerns from the general public about the balance Rp 0. So based on these issues, the objective of this study was to understand the BPNT Implementation in Pammana District, Wajo Regency.

This study applied a qualitative descriptive approach. The data collected through observation, interviews, and a review of the documentation. Following that, the three stages of the data analysis technique were completed: data reduction, data presentation, and conclusion-making.

The result of the study suggested that the BPNT will be implemented in 2021 Pammana District, Wajo Regency, specifically: First, the e-Warong agent companion party properly carried out communication and socialization to socialize each distribution process to KPM, but KPM has not yet understood the goals and workings of the BPNT program. Second, due to poor connectivity to the network in the hamlet, there are still two villages without an e-warong or an EDC machine. Thirdly, the implementation agent is cordial when offering KPM services. Fourth, the bureaucratic framework, service protocols, and organizational structure involved in the BPNT Program's implementation are highly complicated.
